Warsaw, October 2.

THE King of Sweden has publish'd a Manifesto, wherein he declares in Favour of the Confederated Nobility of Great Poland, it is in Substance as follows,

'His Majesty declares, That having been causelessly provok'd by the King of Poland, he entred 'with his Troops into the Territories of the Republick, without any Design of doing any Damage 'to the Republick or the Inhabitants of Poland, and 'with no other View than to reestablish the Liberty 'of the Poles, undermin'd and endanger'd by this 'War which was declar'd against him without the 'Consent of the Republick; and to restore the ancient Laws to their former Vigour, on the Maintenance of which 'tis notorious the Force of the Treaties between his Majesty and the Republick depend. 'That his Majesty persists in the same Design, being 'resolv'd not to retire out of Poland till he has seen 'the Troubles appeas'd, the Peace and Liberty of 'the Republick out of Danger, and at the same time 'his Majesty's own Security sufficiently provided for, 'which is what he profes's'd to intend from the first 'day he came into it. That, contrary to his Expectation, he has found that his Intention has not 'been receiv'd with that Approbation it deserv'd, 'but on the contrary, that those Members of the 'Republick which lately met at Lublin, and which 'ought to have had some regard to the Aim propos'd by his Majesty, instead of having such regard (under Pretence of providing for the Defence 'of the Republick) suffer'd themselves to be so far misled, as to be induc'd to take pernicious Resolutions against his Majesty, tending to push things 'to the last Extremity: That although his Majesty 'has just Cause to make use of the Power he has in 'his Hands, to bring upon the Republick, to her 'Damage and Ruine, the Evils she has given birth 'to by the violent and hostile Resolutions pass'd in 'the last Diet, by which she has suffer'd her self to 'be drawn into a most unjust War; yet his Majesty 'being very well inform'd, that a great number of 'the Members of the Republick, who have not yet 'been infected by the rest, are better affected to the 'Liberties of their Country, and desire nothing more 'than the Peace of the Nation and the Reestablishment of their Rights, have enter'd into a Confederacy to maintain them, and have associated together for that purpose, his Majesty not doubting 'that they will apply fit Remedies to the present 'Evils, and find the right Means to settle Peace between the two Kingdoms, is ready to joyn with 'them very willingly in their good Design, and to 'accept the Proposals they may make to him, provided they are proper and sufficient for restoring 'Peace; Wherefore he declares to all those Confederates now assembled, or who shall hereafter meet 'together for such ends, that they may assure themselves of his Friendship absolutely and without Restriction, promising them full Security for their 'Estates and Persons, and to defend them with all 'his Power: And on the contrary, he will look upon 'those to be his Enemies whom he shall find engag'd 'in the opposite Party, and who shall refuse to enter 'into the said Confederacy to recover Liberty; 'Declaring, that he will act against their Persons 'and Estates with the utmost Rigour of Justice: Of 'which his Majesty is pleas'd to warn them beforehand, to the end they may have no cause to 'charge him with the Mischiefs that may befall 'them, if they reject his advantageous well-meant 'Offers.

In some of our former it was said, that the King of Poland had issued Universalia, in which he declares the Confederates of Great Poland to be Rebels unless they immediately lay down their Arms. 'Tis since advis'd from Warsaw, that the Great Marshal of the Crown, has sent two Deputies to the Confederates to enquire into the Motives of their Confederating, and by what Authority they pretend to treat with Sweden: On the other side the Confederates have sent Deputies with a Letter to the Cardinal Primate, in which they desire his Eminency to endeavour to procure a Peace to be settled on the foot propos'd by the King of Sweden.

They write from Hanover of the 16th of October, that they had Advice the King of Poland has summon'd a General Diet to meet on the 18th of November.

Amsterdam, October 22. Some Letters from Dantzick say, that the Swedes had given two Assaults to Thorn, and were repuls'd; But others say the Besieged have sent out a Drummer to offer Terms of Capitulation.

Liege, October 16. We have receiv'd from France through the Low Countries, the following Copy of a Letter written by a General Officer in the Army of the Marshal de Villars, concerning the Action that happen'd on the 20th of last Month.

'Prince Lewis of Baden being inform'd what 'want of Provisions and Money we were in, in our 'Camp, between Ausburg and Donawert, undertook to streighten us yet more, or to cut off 'our Communication with the Marques's d'Usson 'who remain'd in our Intrenchments at Dillingen with 19 Battallions and 15 Squadrons. And 'in order to it he commanded Count Stirum to advance between Donawert and Hochstet, and to lay 'a Bridge over the Danube. To prevent which 'Design, we pass'd the Danube on the 19th, and 'the next day came in sight of the Enemy. Monsieur 'd'Usson who was to attack the Enemy in concert 'with us, having a shorter March than we, was up 'with them before us: But their whole Army falling 'upon him, he was oblig'd to retire into his Intrenchments. An hour afterwards we advanc'd, 'and the Enemy stood to receive us. Our Cavalry 'charg'd them thrice. They retreated fighting, and 'our Infantry could not come to engage them. They 'left left 3000 Men kill'd in the Field, 18 Standards, 4 Colours, 33 Pieces of Cannon, 18 Boats with Materials for a Bridge, and 4000 Priſoners. We did not looſe 300 Men. My Lord Lee was wounded in the ſide, &c.

There is come to our hand likewiſe a Letter from the Marqueſs d'Uſſon printed, containing a Relation of this Action, in which he ſays, he owes that Juſtice to the Enemy to acknowledge that they retir'd in great Order: Yet he adds, that they loſt 8000 Men on this Occaſion; and that of the King's Troops but 1000 Men were loſt. Which is very unlikely, if the Imperialiſts retreated ſo orderly, and loſt ſo few Colours, as the French themſelves tell us.
